a The value of imports from Brazil for the year ending June 30, 1893, as reported by collectors of customs, was about $75,000,000 in excess of their true value in United States money, owing to the fact that importers did not furnish customs officers with the gold values of their imports, but reported such values in the depreciated paper money of Brazil. The excess in the value of coffee is estimated to have been about $60,000,000, in the value of india rubber about $11,000,000, and in all other articles about $4,000,000.
